MEDICINAL.

My Poor Back!

That "poor back" is held responsible for more than its share of the sufferings of mankind. If your dog bites a man who kicks it, do you blame the dog? On the same principle the kidneys utter their protest against nervousness, impure blood, and resulting constipation. These force them to do extraordinary work in ridding the resulting constitution. These force them system of the poisons which are the blood. Then the sufferer says the eared. "Not yet;" but they will back aches; the kidneys are diseased. "Not yet;" but they will be unless the nerves are strengthened, the blood purified, and the constitution of kidney troubles, and Paine's Celery Compound removes them quickly. With its tonic, purifying, and laxative effect, it also strengthens the weak kidneys, making it almost infallible in news. If your hopes of cure have not been realized, try Paine's Celery Compound it gives perfect health to all who council of "their root back." Price $1.00. pound; it gives perfect health to all who complain of "their poor backs." Price $1.00. OLD BY DRUGGISTS. SEND FOR ILLUSTRATED PAPER.

Lady Ellenborough. Mrs. Lew Wallace, in her book, "The Repose in Egypt," now in press, gives an exceedingly flowery account of Lady Ellenborough, the eccentric wife of an English no-bleman, who, emulating the example of bleman, who, emulating the example of Lady Hester Stanbope and Lady Mary Wortley Montague, not to mention a French | Heals the Sores. Relady, Mme. de la Tour d'Auvergne, who built herself a temple on the top of Mount Olivet, and lives there now, deserted her Taste and Smell. country and went to live in the far East. Mrs. Wallace says of her: One day she fled to Italy, and, after years of reckless living, thence to Greece. The House of Lords easily granted a divorce to her husband, and the children remained with him. By the terms of the divorce, a large income was allotted her, and she set up the standard of wit and beauty, and to it flocked genius and valor. She married again, a nobleman of Greece, from whom she was separated by command of King Otho. Determined to rival Chatham's eccentric granddaughter, she sailed away from Greece to see what the gorgeous East is made of. Her ample income gave means of gratifying a taste exquisite as it was luxurious—servants, carriages. furniture, plate, linen, a French maid, the companion of her changeful moods, even her little lapdog went with her. There are old citizens of Beyrout who remember the stir among an idle populace when the great English lady landed at the seaport. Her languages gave her the broadest range of acquaintance, and she had a genius for friendships. Officials of rank crowded the salon, a throne room, where she spoke in one evening French, Italiau, Slav. German, Spanish, Arabic, Turkish and Greek as readily as her native tougue. Page af er page is devoted by Mrs. Wallace to describing the surroundings and life of the wonderful woman who grew tired of Damascus, and set out for the hills of the does not thick it best to tell names and tales together, so she calls the sheik Aular. His real name was Digby el Mezrab. In describ-ing him she takes occasion to say that when of men for polish and urbanity is the Arabian, next to him the Turk; then comes the Italian; then the Spaniard and Frenchman; then the cold, stiff Englishman, and lastly the helter-skelter American, and I presume California is worse than Chicago, though I have never been there." Lady Ellenborough married the sheik in his tent in the desert, with no witnesses but Arabs, and according to the laws of Islam. The bride found to her horror when she returned to Damascus that she had forfeited her nationality, and had become a Turkish subject. She never repented of her bargain, but made over her property to her husband and lived with him for fifteen years, when she died, regretted by the tribe and by all Arabs. She was devotedly attached to her husband, and he to her. The wife of the English Consul at Damascus, who knew her, said that she and her husband were never apart, that she kept his respect and was the mother and Queen of his tribe. When she died a rare shrine was erected to her memory at Damascus. The romance of Lady Ellenborough's life Mrs. Wallace heard under the palms, sung in a low, slow song by an Anazeh, who had no thought when singing that the wife of the American Minister to Turkey was list-

A BROADWAY LUNCH ROOM .- One of the most curious varieties of lunch room is down town in Broadway. No chairs are provided, both sides of the room being lined with shelves loaded with viands; all clearly marked with their different prices. In here rush bankers, lawyers, brokers and clerks. Each grabs a plate, knife, spoon, fork and cup, seizes what he likes from the shelves, bolts it standing, reckons up his own bill, draws a check from a pile near the door for an equal amount, presents it at the desk, pays and departs, unquestioned whether he has caten a dime or a dollar's worth. This method of trusting to customers' honesty is found to pay better with the class of men who eat there than hiring waiters. Undoubtedly a certain quantity is eaten that is not paid for, but a dozen practiced detectives are on the floor during the rush hours at noon, watching people who are suspected, and the amazing rapidity with which a man can help himself, swallow and be gone, makes the place highly popular with men who only eat to live, and live only to hurry.—N.
